

10.4 ITALIAN ORDNANCE REVOLVER

The Italian Army adopted this cartridge in 1874 for their Chamelot-Delvigne revolver and also used it in the Glisenti Model 1889 revolver. The cartridge was originally loaded with a lead projectile and it will be noticed that the early lead bulleted versions are longer than the later full metal-jacketed ones and that the case has a pronounced shoulder. Later production had a gradual taper. It was manufactured well into the 1930s. G. Fiocchi was loading the cartridge as late as the 1960s.

Early production with chamfered base and lead projectile.

Later production with the domed base and Inspectors initials.

L to R. The projectile for the later model of cartridges. The early ball cartridge and then the domed based ball cartridge.

L. N. = Nicola Leggiadre 1914 to 1935 ?

Z. G. = Gaetano Zangari 1935 to 1937 ?

Year	L.N.	Z.G.	Fiocchi
1874			X
1900
01
02
03
04
05
06
07
08
09
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
29
30
31
32
33
34
35
36
37			