

7.35x51

The Italians adopted this cartridge in 1938 to replace the 6.5x52 Carcano that combat experience had shown to be inadequate for serious social purposes. In effect the Italians simply modified the Model 91 rifle for this new calibre. As with any other Army the Italians discovered that changing calibres at the start of a war is a difficult thing to do, so they withdrew the weapon.

This clip comes in two styles, the gloss finish and a matte.
