

.38 SHORT

Developed in England around 1868 this cartridge was issued in two case lengths. The long case version being the first on the scene, the short case version came along later. The long cased versions were applied to Webley, Colt and Tranter revolvers, whereas the short cased versions were applied to cheap revolvers that later became known as “Saturday Night Specials”

